Why choose this course?
If you have ever wondered how brands are built, customers communicated with, new products developed and long-term relationships established, then you should consider a career in marketing.

Overview
Marketing is a challenging, strategic and ever-changing career. Successful brands such rely heavily on marketing programs to ensure they stay in front of competitors and in the minds of customers – making this an indispensable role.

Marketing is a broad discipline combing the creation of new products, their packaging and contents, deciding where and how to sell them, and how to communicate with potential customers about their benefits.

The marketing function covers a variety of jobs across a wide range of industries. This, and its pivotal role in business strategy, makes marketing a challenging, satisfying and fulfilling career choice.

Learn about market research and consumer behaviour from leading industry professionals. Gain a thorough understanding of pricing and placement strategies and delve into the revolutionary world of e-marketing and integrated communications.

Tools such as market and consumer research, product design, promotional, pricing and distribution strategies will be studied to give a depth of understanding of marketing.

Graduates work in a very wide range of roles and industries from the marketing departments of large firms to small businesses, consultancies and not-for-profit organisations.

The capstone Strategic Marketing unit develops skills in implementing strategic marketing decisions in specific business situations. Over the course students also develop the ability to integrate marketing and other business functions.

Industry links
Our real-world links start with our lecturers, many of whom have professional experience in industries as diverse as manufacturing, market research, sports marketing, sponsorship, major events and service industries. These links will enrich your learning through access to real-world examples and guest lecturers, and up-to-the-minute professional practices.

AMPed, the student association for QUT advertising, marketing and public relations students, gives you access to industry professionals and events run by professional bodies. It’s also a great way to meet your fellow students and create your own career networks.

Course combination and career outcomes
QUT has been a market leader in marketing education for more than 20 years, and our graduates are marketing professionals in a range of industries both locally and internationally.

Many of our graduates begin as marketing coordinators, or assistant brand and product managers, completing functional aspects of marketing, such as marketing communication or sales management. They then progress to more strategic roles such as business development managers, brand or product managers, marketing... consultants or marketing managers.

Extend your Marketing major with additional units, or choose complementary studies in advertising, public relations, management, Integrated Marketing Communication, entrepreneurship, economics, sales or logistics.

The areas of advertising, public relations and integrated marketing communication offer a complementary second study area. Adding a stronger emphasis on communications skills will see you well positioned to work in a variety of industries, whether your interests lie in consumer goods, service industries, the public sector or charity organisations.

Combining your marketing major with some study in management will provide you with strategic and decision making skills, and give you greater scope to add value to the organisation through achieving competitive advantage. This combination may also enhance your career progression through to senior management positions.

Marketing skills are highly sought after by multinational firms to manage marketing communications and logistics globally. Including studies in international business or logistics can help launch your career into overseas markets.

Your degree at a glance
Year 1
You will build a base of broad business knowledge through the core units, covering all areas of business from finance, accounting and economics through to international and electronic business. With generic skills in all areas, you will gain an understanding of how businesses operate within the commercial and legal environment. Your marketing major will commence in second semester, investigating why consumers buy products and how they make purchase decisions.

Year 2
Building your knowledge of consumer behaviour, you will gain skills in conducting consumer and audience research and learn how market research informs corporate and strategic decision making. You will investigate the part technology has to play in developing new products for consumers, and learn how e-marketing can help companies compete in a global market. You will also have the opportunity to personalise your degree with the selection of a second study area.

Year 3
You will round out your major by finding out how marketing decisions contribute to the strategic success of any business. Opportunities to apply your knowledge to real-world scenarios include producing a marketing plan in a simulated environment which allows you to apply your marketing decision making skills and assess the results. You may also have the opportunity to complete an industry placement to gain valuable work experience.

Campus options
You may choose to complete your business degree at Gardens Point or Caboolture campus, majoring in Marketing.

Professional recognition
Graduates may be eligible for membership of a number of professional bodies depending on choice of major and units.

Marketing first and second major and extension – Students may meet the requirements for membership of the Australian Marketing Institute, the Marketing Research Society of Australia, the Australian Institute of Management, the American Marketing Association and the Australian Institute of Export.

AMB202 INTEGRATED MARKETING COMMUNICATION
In past decades many organisations separated the different forms of marketing communication that convey their corporate and marketing messages. They developed separate plans for their advertising, public relations, direct marketing, personal selling and sales promotion with separate goals, objectives, strategies and budgets. Today many companies recognise the concept of integrated marketing communication which integrates these different functions along with other aspects of the marketing mix that communicate with stakeholders and customers. Integrated marketing communication requires a ‘total’ approach to planning marketing communication programs and coordinating communication strategies in support of overall brand and product/service marketing objectives.
