Why choose this course?

No two days are the same in the exciting and diverse world of public relations. If you are good at writing, organising, have creative flair, an ability to work under pressure, enjoy current affairs and have good communication skills, a career in public relations could be for you.

Overview

Our public relations major takes publicity, promotion, events, and relationship building to new levels. Throughout the course, you will develop core public relations skills used by practitioners and organisations to manage reputations and relationships with a variety of stakeholders. Learning how to use strategic public relations to effectively communicate and engage with employees, customers, communities and governments prepares you for entry into the global business environment.

Through real-world experience you will develop writing, planning and research skills that will allow you to provide innovative solutions to a range of professionals across corporate, government, agency and not-for-profit sectors. This discipline connects business practices to corporate social responsibility in an environment where organisations recognise the importance of building and managing their reputations with the community.

Completing your degree as a qualified professional communicator, your daily work environment could take you from running a publicity campaign for a movie launch through to working on grassroots campaigns with local communities or the highest levels of government.

Our graduates find work as communication specialists in local and global organisations ranging from dedicated public relations consultancies to specialised units within small, medium, and large firms, government departments and not-for-profit organisations.

Following the introductory unit, which provides a base platform of public relations theory and practice, two units are dedicated to help you build the writing and planning skills necessary for a public relations role. Three third-level units continue to build on these skills by presenting a broad view of the strategic application of public relations, including public relations within organisations, global case studies of public relations, and public relations management. The capstone Public Relations Campaigns unit gives you the chance to enhance your existing knowledge and skills by designing a campaign for a real world client.

Industry links

QUT’s course is well recognised, with a history of more than 25 years in educating industry professionals. This means you will enter an industry which has an established network of QUT graduates currently working in senior positions across the globe.

Our teaching staff has strong industry experience having worked within organisations or public relations consultancies, and we continue to maintain extensive links to current practitioners. These industry links provide students with exposure to guest lecturers who present relevant real-world best-practice case studies in class. They also provide students with opportunities to access internships in consultancies as well as the government, corporate and community sectors.

AMPed, the student association for QUT public relations, advertising and marketing students, gives you access to events run by professional bodies such as the Public Relations Institute of Australia. It’s a great way to meet your fellow students and begin creating your own career networks.

Course combination and career outcomes
The diversity of organisations which rely on public relations as a means of communicating with key audiences means this course can assist you to pursue your interests in a wide variety of industries. From charities to professional sport teams, major events to law firms, consumer goods to the government sector, all seek the services of public relations professionals.

Public relations specialists help organisations build and manage their reputations and work with a range of stakeholders including employees, shareholders, customers, regulators and members of the community.

You may enter the workplace as a public relations officer or consultant, corporate communication advisor, community relations officer, special events manager, promotions manager, or government media advisor.

You can complement your public relations major with secondary areas of study in advertising, marketing, management, human resource management, integrated marketing communication or a language, among other options. Adding marketing or advertising electives will enhance your skills in developing public relations and promotional strategies for organisations, while learning about integrated marketing communication will help you build a comprehensive toolkit for these strategies.

Complementing your public relations course with study in management or human resource management will help you gain access to a career in corporate communication, helping organisations communicate with employees and the wider community.

Your degree at a glance

Year 1
You will build a base of broad business knowledge through the core units, covering all areas of business from finance, accounting and economics through to marketing and global business. With generic skills in all areas, you will gain an understanding of how businesses operate within the commercial and social environment. You will begin your studies in public relations in the second semester, with an introduction to founding principles, an overview of the profession, and an insight into the future of public relations practice in contemporary organisations.

Year 2
You will build knowledge and skills in public relations techniques, learning how to write and prepare public relations tactics and tools such as media releases, social media programs, and events for real-world clients. In doing so, you will develop a portfolio of public relations materials to show potential employers. You will also build skills in public relations planning, allowing you to identify the best practices of public relations by analysing successful public relations campaigns from Australia and around the world. You will also have the opportunity to personalise your degree with the selection of a second study area.

Year 3
Acting as an internal adviser, you will explore corporate communication issues for organisations and track contemporary issues through case studies. You will also take the role of a public relations consultant, advising a real-world client on their problem or opportunity. Working in partnership with other students to form a consulting team, you will prepare a campaign plan to present to your client. Your writing skills will be further developed through your campaign portfolio. Work placements are also available to match your interests in consultancies, government, corporate settings and community groups.

Professional recognition
This course is accredited by the industry’s peak professional body, the Public Relations Institute of Australia (PRIA), providing graduates access to professional education and career opportunities. QUT maintains strong links with this body, in which a number of our teaching staff hold executive positions.

Practical teaching
The practical nature of this major means that you will graduate with a portfolio of work to demonstrate your skills to potential employers.

Third year project work is imperative to demonstrating the depth and breadth of skills you have accumulated throughout the course. This hands-on experience will give your career a vital kick start by bringing together the design, strategic planning and tactical preparation that underpins a real world public relations campaign.

UNIT SYNOPSES

AMB200 CONSUMER BEHAVIOUR
This unit provides students with the fundamental theories and models to develop a sound understanding of consumers, their needs, and behaviours. It provides a detailed examination of the consumer decision process and the internal and external influences on this core decision process. The unit also assists students in applying this knowledge to the development, implementation and evaluation of marketing activities within an organisation.
Prerequisites: BSB126, CTB126, BSB116, or BSB117
Antirequisites: MIB204
Equivalents: CTB200
Credit points: 12
Contact hours: 3 per week
Campus: Gardens Point
Teaching period: 2010 SEM-1, 2010 SEM-2 and 2010 SUM

AMB201 MARKETING AND AUDIENCE RESEARCH
This unit provides an introduction to the conduct and evaluation of marketing and audience research across the disciplines of advertising, marketing and public relations. Class members explore how field studies, survey and experimental research are employed to support advertising, marketing and public relations information needs. The unit provides an overview of research process, research design, methods of data collection and analysis, and the development of research proposals to support decision-making. Class members also explore issues related to research on media audiences, research ethics, and the management of client briefings.
Prerequisites: BSB126, CTB126, BSB116, or BSB117
Antirequisites: MIB204, MIB305, MGB220, COB334
Equivalents: CTB201
Credit points: 12
Contact hours: 3 per week
Campus: Gardens Point and Caboolture
Teaching period: 2010 SEM-1, 2010 SEM-2 and 2010 SUM

AMB202 INTEGRATED MARKETING COMMUNICATION
In past decades many organisations separated the different forms of marketing communication that convey their corporate and marketing messages. They developed separate plans for their advertising, public relations, direct marketing, personal selling and sales promotion with separate goals, objectives, strategies and budgets. Today many companies recognise the concept of integrated marketing communication which integrates these different functions along with other aspects of the marketing mix that communicate with stakeholders and customers. Integrated marketing communication requires a "total" approach to planning marketing communication programs and coordinating communication strategies in support of overall brand and product/service marketing objectives.
Prerequisites: BSB126, CTB126, BSB116, or BSB117
Antirequisites: COB207, MIB309
Credit points: 12
Contact hours: 3 per week
Campus: Gardens Point
Teaching period: 2010 SEM-1 and 2010 SEM-2

AMB220 ADVERTISING THEORY AND PRACTICE
This unit serves as an introduction to later units in the advertising major and gives learners an overview of the advertising industry and the management of the advertising function. The unit traverses the interrelationship of the institutions of advertising, the advertisers, the advertising agencies and the media. It introduces research and details methods of determining advertising objectives, budgets, establishing target audiences, interpreting audience ratings and circulation figures, and enables learners to gain a preliminary understanding of the creative functions of the advertising industry. It also shows the ethical and legal side of advertising and its important role in society and the economy.
Prerequisites: BSB126, CTB126, BSB116, or BSB117
Antirequisites: COB308
Credit points: 12
Contact hours: 3 per week
Campus: Gardens Point
Teaching period: 2010 SEM-1 and 2010 SEM-2

AMB240 MARKETING PLANNING AND MANAGEMENT
This unit provides students with the fundamental theories of the advertising industry and the management of the advertising function. The unit traverses the interrelationship of the institutions of advertising, the advertisers, the advertising agencies and the media. It introduces research and details methods of determining advertising objectives, budgets, establishing target audiences, interpreting audience ratings and circulation figures, and enables learners to gain a preliminary understanding of the creative functions of the advertising industry. It also shows the ethical and legal side of advertising and its important role in society and the economy.

BSB119 GLOBAL BUSINESS
This unit examines the drivers of globalisation and the diversity of country markets at an introductory level. It develops the skills and understanding to identify and respond to the opportunities, challenges and risks of conducting business across politically, economically and culturally diverse environments. An authentic country feasibility study is undertaken to help identify where a firm can find opportunities both in terms of actual and potential markets and the location for value-adding activities. The unit aims for students to have developed a comprehension of the nature and role of globalisation and the drivers of international business, a knowledge of the competitive forces and challenges confronting all business as a consequence of globalisation processes and an awareness of the additional knowledge and skills required of management to operate business internationally across a diversity of environments.
