Overview
The Master of Laws by Coursework will deepen and broaden your legal learning, developing your critical evaluation of the law and consideration and analysis of the attitudes and values underlying it. During the course, you are expected to attain high level competence in legal research and writing on areas of conceptual difficulty. The course leads on to the Doctor of Juridical Science (subject to normal entry requirements).

Entry Requirements
Domestic students:
Prospective students must have:
(i) completed the requirements for the degree of Bachelor of Laws or equivalent (as approved by Director, Graduate Programs) with a minimum GPA of 4 or equivalent; OR
(ii) hold a professional qualification in law and have at least three years of professional legal experience after first admission to practice and also satisfy the Director, Graduate Programs, that they have the requisite ability to complete the Master of Laws by Coursework degree.

International students:
Prospective international students must have completed the requirements for the degree of Bachelor of Laws or equivalent (as approved by Director, Graduate Programs) with a minimum GPA of 4 or equivalent.

Course Structure
The course structure comprises 96 credit points (8 units) of coursework units. This can be achieved in one of two ways:

1. Students may nominate a major from the list below and choose units to the value of at least 72 credit points (6 units) from that particular major. The remaining 24 credit points (2 units) can be chosen from any unit not included in the nominated major, including units listed under "additional units";
2. Students may complete a generic degree by choosing all 96 credit points (8 units) from any of the majors.

Majors available:
Commercial Law, Criminology, Environmental Resources Law, Health Law, Public Law, Intellectual Property and Technology Law

NOTE: International students are normally only able to graduate with a generic degree.

Articulation
This course articulates with the Doctor of Juridical Science (SJD).

Advanced Standing
Graduates of QUT's Graduate Diploma in Legal Practice (LP41), who graduated from courses run in and from 2000 until the end of 2008, are entitled to 48 credit points of unspecified credit in the LW51 Master of Laws course, if they enrol in LW51 by second semester 2010.

Graduates of QUT's Graduate Diploma in Legal Practice before 2000 or after 2008 are eligible for up to 24 credit points of unspecified credit towards the Master of Laws course.

Graduates of other Australian university-based practical legal training courses that lead to an award of a Graduate Diploma in Legal Practice are entitled to 12 credit points of unspecified credit.

Persons who have successfully completed the Queensland Law Society accredited specialist assessment and are Queensland Law Society Accredited Specialists are entitled to 12 credit points of unspecified credit when they enrol in the Master of Laws course.

Unit Information
Not all units are available in any one year. Generally, postgraduate law units are offered on a two year rotational basis, and are offered subject to staff availability and minimum enrolments being met.

Please refer to the following link for current unit information:
http://www.law.qut.edu.au/study/courses/pgrad/units_10.jsp
Units may be offered in block, internal or internal and external mode of study.
Note: Units offered in external mode are not available for off-shore study. Students who wish to enrol in units externally must be living in Australia. Only a small number of units are offered on an external basis each year.
*International students on student visas are able to enrol in a combination of intensive, external and internal units each semester. (This is subject to approval)

The degree may contain up to 48 credit points in independent research projects, as approved by the Director, Graduate Programs.

The course rules allows students to undertake a limited number of approved units from other schools at QUT or from other universities (subject to meeting credit rules for the LLM).

UNIT SYNOPSIS

JSN001 THEORIES OF JUSTICE
This unit is concerned with and/or clarifying the assumptions that underpin arguments about what is just or unjust within various spheres of contemporary Australian society. The unit provides a framework for evaluating the relative usefulness of various theories of justice in terms of their theoretical implications and practical applications. The unit focuses on the interface between justice, postmodernism and the law.

Credit points: 12  Campus: External  Teaching period: 2007 SEM-1  Incompatible with: JSB411, LWN040

JSN023 JUSTICE, LAW AND DEMOCRACY

In this unit, students explore analyses of the major issues of social philosophy including justifications of liberty, harm to others, private property rights, distributive justice, environmental harms, help to others and criminal and offensive behaviour. Students also discuss links between law, justice and social institutions and how we might adjudicate between competing interests in society. Lawyers and other justice professionals, public administrators, and para-professionals working in the fields of law, justice or politics will find this unit useful in developing a theoretical foundation for understanding social institutions and how they interact with law and morality. Students develop critical research and writing skills.

Credit points: 12  Campus: Kelvin Grove and External  Teaching period: 2007 SEM-2  Incompatible with: JSN005, LWN042

JSN104 TRANSNATIONAL AND ORGANISED CRIME

Antirequisites: JSB982  Credit points: 12  Campus: Internet and External

JSN111 TERRORISM AND POLITICAL VIOLENCE

In this unit you will be taught the defining characteristics of terrorism and why it is described as both a political and criminal act. During the unit you will be exposed to different types of terror tactics and will investigate particular terror groups that are currently operating on a national, regional and international scale. This unit will explore the characteristics of terrorist organizations and examine how recent developments in technology and finance allow them to flourish. The unit will provide students with the opportunity to critically engage with counter-terror tactics, assess whether the tactics engage with the terror threat as a political or criminal one, and evaluate their effectiveness.

Antirequisites: JSB985  Credit points: 12  Campus: Internet and External  Teaching period: 2011 SEM-2

JSN113 THEORIES OF CRIME

The main aim of this unit is to introduce you to the study of theoretical criminology. This unit will address the social context of crime but is not exclusively sociological. The study of criminology is essentially multi-disciplinary and this is reflected in the diversity of theoretical approaches. Theory is typically offered as distinct from methods of research, however, together they provide the foundation for policy and practice. The unit provides an analytical framework in order to critically assess the epistemological claims and justifications found in criminological theory. Criminological theories are viewed embedded governmental practices aimed at ensuring the regulation and control of particular ‘problem populations’.

Antirequisites: JSB272, JSB231, JSB018  Credit points: 12  Campus: Internet and External  Teaching period: 2011 SEM-2

JSN144 EVIDENCE IN ORGANISED CRIME INVESTIGATIONS

In recognition of the limitations of traditional law enforcement methods in dealing with organised crime and corruption, the Commonwealth and some State governments have granted more extensive powers to their police services and created inquisitorial commissions equipped with special coercive powers. The aim of this unit is firstly, to assist investigators and other professionals to appreciate the impact of rules of evidence in this specific context, secondly, to understand how these new powers can be more effectively exercised, and thirdly, to inform those representing persons who are the subject of such exercise on how best they can protect the rights of their clients.

LWN025 RESEARCH PROJECT 1A
In this unit, students undertake a supervised research project of about 10,000 words over one semester approved by the Teaching, Learning and Curriculum Committee. Students should refer to the relevant course rules for the maximum credit point limit of Research Project units allowed to be undertaken as part of their course and how to apply to undertake this unit.
Credit points: 12    Contact hours: 26 hours in total    Campus: Gardens Point    Teaching period: 2011 SEM-1 and 2011 SEM-2

LWN030 MEDIATION
The ADR movement has developed at a rapid pace in Australia and internationally with mediation being incorporated into the practices of most courts and tribunals as well as at the private level. This unit examines the theory and skills of mediation. The aim of this unit is to provide a coherent knowledge and understanding of mediation theory as well as developing mediation skills relevant to ongoing learning and professional practice.
Credit points: 12    Contact hours: 26 hrs in total    Campus: Gardens Point    Teaching period: 2011 6TP1 and 2011 5TP8

LWN036 SELECT ISSUES IN INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY LAW
This unit examines a range of contemporary issues in the broad field of intellectual property law. Topics include: Copyright protection for digital works; the Copyright Law Review Committee (CLRC) Reports; defences in relation to computer program (reverse engineering); the protection of facts and the Database proposals; collective administration of copyright; fair dealing; copyright protection of Indigenous art and culture; moral rights and performers' rights; contracting out and the future of copyright in the digital age; patent protection for computer programs; current issues in Trade Marks (including domain names and geographical indications).
Contact hours: 26 hrs in total    Campus: Gardens Point

LWN046 ADVANCED PLANNING LAW
To practice effectively in the growing area of Environmental and Town Planning Law it is essential that practitioners have a detailed knowledge of the principals of town planning, relevant statutory instruments and the practice and procedure of the Planning and Environment Court. It is advisable for those practising in this area to be aware of the legislative changes that have taken place in the recent past and what is proposed for the future. It is an area where the State Government has and will continue to make considerable changes.
Credit points: 12    Contact hours: 2 hrs per week    Campus: Gardens Point    Teaching period: 2011 SEM-1

LWN048 ADVANCED LEGAL RESEARCH
Legal Research at an advanced level is a fundamental part of postgraduate legal study both for coursework and more particularly thesis and dissertation purposes. Exposure to a structured course on the nature, aims and techniques of legal and other research is essential to a proper foundation in postgraduate research skills at an advanced level. Advanced Legal Research is also highly recommended for those students who have completed their undergraduate degree in a jurisdiction other than Australia.
Credit points: 12    Contact hours: 26 hours in total    Campus: Gardens Point    Teaching period: 2011 6TP2 and 2011 SEM-2

LWN049 INTERNATIONAL ENVIRONMENTAL LAW
International environmental law is a dynamic area of international law with implications for the management of natural resources both in Australia and at the global level. This unit introduces students to the fundamental principles structuring international environmental law, discusses the principal institutions, cases and treaties in this field and explores the impact of international environmental obligations on natural resource management in Australia. The unit highlights the particular challenges facing international environmental lawyers seeking the protection and enhancement of the global environment, as well as international environmental issues of contemporary concern.

LWN050 RESTRICTIVE TRADE PRACTICES LAW
All countries that rely on markets and competition to allocate resources and satisfy the needs of consumers have a set of rules designed to deal with problems of market failure caused by one or more firms possessing market power.
Such firms are able to undermine the competitive process by engaging in anti-competitive behaviour. This unit considers this Law.

LWN051 CONSUMER PROTECTION AND PRODUCT LIABILITY

This unit is divided into two main parts. The first part considers the statutory and common law actions that are available to protect consumers from misleading or deceptive conduct and unfair marketing practices. Emphasis is given to the role played by the Trade Practices Act in relation to conveyancing and land transactions, financial services and advertising. Unconscionable conduct is also considered. The second part of the unit is concerned with statutory and common law actions available when loss or damage is suffered as a result of defective products. Remedies and defences are considered throughout the course.

LWN060 ENVIRONMENTAL LEGAL SYSTEM

Environmental law and its related unit Natural Resources Law have become significant areas of professional legal practice over the last decade or so. A number of firms of solicitors have set up units in their practices specialising in these areas. At the same time, these branches of the law have emerged as significant areas for research and publication. Most law schools have undergraduate courses in environmental law and several have introduced postgraduate courses in these areas. There is a growing demand for courses in these areas at postgraduate level on the part of those wishing to study the subject for the first time and also on the part of those seeking to expand their existing knowledge and understanding of these areas. This unit complements the unit in Natural Resources Law. Together these two courses create the framework within which further study is possible either by way of further units or more focused research papers.

Credit points: 12
Contact hours: 26 hrs in total
Campus: Gardens Point

LWN061 NATURAL RESOURCES LAW

This unit includes the following: the principles and concepts of natural resources law in Queensland dealing with the ownership and control of natural resources, providing access to these resources, controlling the operational side of the development of these resources, and recognising commercial structures for achieving these operational objectives; an assessment of a number of developed and evolving mechanisms for achieving these objectives such as policy objectives, management plans, incentives and inducements, market instruments and property rights. Examples include land, water and fisheries.

Campus: Gardens Point
Teaching period: 2010 SEM-2

LWN065 CONSTRUCTION AND ENGINEERING LAW

Preparation of construction and engineering contracts has now become a distinct area of legal practice with many firms having established sections which specialise in this area. A sound knowledge of the standard forms used in the industries and the special principles of law applicable to this area is essential for those wishing to practise in the area. This unit provides the knowledge sought by current and future practitioners and those considering embarking upon research in this area.

LWN075 INTERNATIONAL COMMERCIAL TRANSACTIONS

This unit on international trade law addresses the legal problems that arise in the formation and operation of commercial transactions of an international nature. Its scope is largely confined to the sphere of private law. Topics covered include: the international trade law and environment; harmonisation and unification of law; international contracts (characteristics, comparative law, negotiating and drafting, choice of law; international sale of goods (trade terms, standard conditions, uniform law); carriage of goods by sea; payment in a documentary sale, and other financing mechanisms; marketing arrangements (agency, distributorship, subsidiary, joint venture).

Teaching period: 2010 SEM-2

LWN076 INTERNATIONAL COMMERCIAL DISPUTES
This unit addresses legal issues regarding the resolution of commercial disputes in international trade. It is concerned with disputes in respect of international commercial relationships of a private law nature. Dispute resolution mechanisms (such as litigation, arbitration and alternative dispute resolution) are examined, and their effectiveness evaluated, in the light of the legal and practical realities in the international trade environment. Students are introduced to a range of commercial practices, national regulation, and international uniform rules, model laws and conventions.

LWN083 ESTATE PLANNING
In recent years there has been a renewed interest in all aspects of estate planning. During the period when death duties were imposed at both the State and Federal levels, professional interest in this area was high as the public perceived its need for expert professional advice, particularly as it related to the structuring of a person’s affairs to minimise the impost of these duties. The emergence of capital gains tax and the realisation of its growing significance, together with a recent emphasis generally on financial planning has again brought this area to prominence. At a time when the legal profession is looking for new areas at work, there is also evidence that lawyers see this area as one which has been largely neglected. This unit seeks to conceptualise a framework in which the issues which arise in estate planning can usefully be considered.

Credit points: 12
Contact hours: 2 hrs per week
Campus: Gardens Point and External
Teaching period: 2010 SEM-2

LWN087 CONTEMPORARY ISSUES IN TORTS
Contemporary issues in the law of torts extend beyond the tort of negligence to include areas such as the economic torts, the tortious liability of public officials, the torts of trespass and nuisance, and the emerging tort of privacy. In addition there have been significant developments in related areas such as vicarious liability and the apportioning of liability amongst multiple tortfeasors. It is, therefore, appropriate that these contemporary issues in the law of torts be the subject of an LLM unit that allows for a more sophisticated level of conceptual analysis and synthesis than was appropriate at an undergraduate level.

LWN094 ENERGY LAW
Natural resources law and its related subject, environmental law, have become significant areas of professional legal practice over the last decade or so. One of the particular areas of natural resources law for these purposes is energy law. Energy law is the law relating to the ownership, use, development and control of those natural resources which are used to produce energy for the benefit of the community. Areas covered in this unit include: the sources and history of energy law; the principles and concepts underlying energy law; the common law rules of ownership of sources of energy; statutory ownership of sources of energy; how the law regulates access to sources of energy; how the law controls the development of sources of energy.

LWN119 EMPLOYMENT LAW
Employment law is a foundation unit that allows students to survey at an advanced level the sources, components and relationships of employment law in Australia. Successful completion of this unit provides students with the necessary background to continue on to undertake further advanced courses in more specialised areas of labour law, including public sector employment law and the law of trade unions.

LWN120 SELECT ISSUES IN MEDIA LAW AND POLICY
In the technology age the media pervades our lives. Those in the media who control the flow of information wield great power. A study of the functioning of media institutions and the controls imposed upon the activities of those institutions in a democratic society may lead to an understanding of the exercise of that power. This unit examines the concept of freedom of speech as exercised by the media and selected limitations on that freedom imposed by the common law and statute, limitations imposed upon media institutions represented by broadcasting law and policy issues affecting the functioning of the media.

LWN122 COMMERCIAL LEASES
With the exponential rise in the numbers of commercial premises such as office blocks, shopping centres and industrial factories in the past decade or so, the study of commercial leases for the legal practitioners has assumed a great importance. Statute law in the form of the Trade Practices Act 1974 and the Retail Shop Leases Act 1994 have also impacted significantly upon commercial leasing practices. Whilst there is no one form of standard commercial lease, certain generic clauses have emerged and there now exists a substantial body of law in Australia relating to the theory underlying and practice of the law of commercial leases. This unit endeavours to explain the theoretical basis for the use of certain basic covenants at the same time taking full account of the practical operation of commercial leases in Australia.

LWN125 ELECTRONIC COMMERCE LAW
It is vital for any participant in the digital age to gain a thorough knowledge of how the information economy is regulated for the benefit of individuals, corporations and the State, nationally and internationally. In order to be able to participate as a lawyer or other professional in this new environment it is important to have an understanding of the laws relating to privacy, e-security, consumer regulation, electronic payment and taxation systems, electronic contracts, and Public Key Infrastructure.
LWN127 ADVANCED INSURANCE LAW 1
This unit covers the nature and definition of insurance, utmost good faith, formation of contract, proposals, etc; scope of Insurance Contracts Act 1984 (Cwlth), non-disclosure and misrepresentation, brokers and agents; Insurance (Agents and Brokers) Act 1984 (Cwlth), or Financial Services Reform Act 2001 (Cwlth) if appropriate, third parties’ rights and obligations; Section 54 Insurance Contracts Act.

LWN129 CONTEMPORARY ISSUES IN SENTENCING LAW
Sentencing law has become a specialised area of research and practice over the past two decades in the United Kingdom and the United States, and increasingly so in Australia. In practice, this is particularly so for barristers and specialist criminal law practitioners. In Australia, law schools have undergraduate and postgraduate units in this area. Almost all Australian jurisdictions have now introduced specialised sentencing legislation, introducing discrete principles and thereby ensuring that a separate discipline area of sentencing law has emerged, complete with its own discourse. It is therefore appropriate that sentencing law should feature as a postgraduate unit in its own right.

Given that employment law is one of the fastest growing areas of legal practice, there is an increasing demand for this area of law and for specialisations within this field of study, including public sector employment law and the law of trade unions, to be studied at postgraduate level by members of the legal profession in both private and public sector legal practice.

LWN135 LAW, JUSTICE AND NEW GENETIC TECHNOLOGIES
Our ability to test, screen and manipulate the human genome is made possible by recent technological breakthroughs in science. The science of genetics is not new, but its profile has never been higher. Current initiatives in genetic knowledge have been described as an international voyage of scientific discovery. The scientific findings are prompting major rethinking of concepts of law and justice. The legal community faces a perpetual challenge in keeping pace with the revolution in genetics. This unit looks at some legal implications of this revolution and charts the major responses of our legal system to modern genetics and biotechnology.

LWN149 CONCEPTION, BIRTH AND THE LAW
Some aspects of human reproduction raise complex legal and ethical considerations. Civil liability to a child can arise where that child is injured in utero or upon delivery. Liability to parents may also arise where a child is conceived as a result of a failed sterilization procedure or where a mother is injured during a negligent delivery. There have also been rapid developments in assisted reproductive technologies. One of the difficulties in this area is an absence of consistent regulation of the many controversial issues associated with such medical advances. These include the nature of any regulatory regime, access to treatment, rights of donors and children born as a result of these technologies, posthumous use of gametes and embryo research. The topics examined in this unit are becoming increasingly important both from the perspective of government regulation and for legal practitioners in the field of health law.

LWN153 SELECT ISSUES IN ART, CULTURE AND THE LAW

This unit introduces a distinct ‘art and culture law’ to Australian legal practitioners, arts practitioners and policy makers, which has been developing in the international arena since the 1980’s. Creating and selling art and cultural objects is the subject of well-defined categories of law, including contracts, sale of goods and copyright, though other specific forms of regulation, such as the law governing the international movement of cultural objects, is less well-known. Finding and applying these areas of law is relatively straightforward, but without an appreciation of the relationship between the areas of law, inconsistencies and contradictions arise. One reason this occurs is because these areas of law cross traditional legal categories, and there is generally very little opportunity within most law courses to understand the inter-relationship and interaction between these disparate areas of law.

With the proliferation of electronic files being created and distributed by corporations around the globe today, it is no surprise that the discovery process during a document-heavy litigation is becoming more and more onerous.

Tools to effectively manage this electronic information are used by many of the larger law firms and will soon be part of every legal practice, in much the same way as the word processor is a necessity in any new millennium practice. Moreover, courts are now taking the initiative to encourage the use of information technology in civil litigation.

Knowledge of the issues that surround electronic documents and the use of information technology to better manage discovery and trial processes is imperative, and such issues are examined in this unit - Electronic Litigation.

Because a decision is being made on behalf of an adult with impaired decision-making capacity, there are issues as to who should make these decisions and how they should be made. The topics examined in this unit are important from the perspective of government regulation, for those making these decisions for adults with impaired capacity (including relatives and those in statutory positions), and for legal practitioners in fields such as health law and succession.

As well, they pose new challenges for legal practitioners, policymakers and scholars. Studying this unit at postgraduate level provides opportunities and challenges that exceed undergraduate study. You will be exposed to a number of contemporary issues affecting children and their health. You will have the opportunity to consider, from interdisciplinary perspectives, legal problems regarding children’s health that face legal, health and other social systems. You will be required to identify an important issue in Australian law relating to children and health, and to conduct legal research, analysis (which can be interdisciplinary) and writing to critically evaluate the situation.

This area involves the consideration of complex legal, ethical and policy considerations. In recent times, decisions of the High Court of Australia and courts in other jurisdictions have emphasised the importance of the rights of patients to make decisions for themselves in relation to medical treatment where they are competent to do so and absent special circumstances.

LWN167 FAMILIES, CREATION AND SEPARATION
Family law is a rapidly evolving area of law that reflects changing societal values and key developments in government policy. Understandings of 'marriage' and 'family' in contemporary Australian society are altering due to changing societal values. In some respects this has occurred in response to an increase in the number of de-facto and same-sex relationships and the changing configurations of 'family' due to people accessing assisted reproductive technology. It is therefore of critical importance that family law practitioners, people working within the family law system and graduates with an interest in family law have the opportunity to study emerging issues relating to family law at a high and analytically sophisticated level.

The unit looks at theoretical and practical issues in relation to dispute resolution that are relevant to working effectively as a professional in a variety of legal and dispute resolution environments. You will have the opportunity to critically reflect on issues such as mediator neutrality, the role of lawyers in dispute resolution processes and the efficacy of confidentiality. These critical reflections will enable you to effectively assess the suitability of dispute resolution processes for certain cases. LWN171 USE OF FORCE AND INTERNATIONAL HUMANITARIAN LAW
This important area of law is currently informing and shaping state responses to terrorist and other threats to peace and security. Many of the fundamental concepts in this area of the law are based on the assumption that conflicts occur between states or occur within states and that the principle actors in a conflict are state-based actors. The events of September 11 and consequent terrorist attacks have invited a rethinking of the fundamentals of the laws applicable to the resort to force and the laws which regulate the use of force in situations of armed conflict. At the same time, long standing rules of International Humanitarian Law (IHL) designed to protect civilians from unwarranted attack and to ensure fair trial for individuals accused of serious violations of international humanitarian law have come under enormous pressure. The course will examine the development of these rules and current developments in the enforcement of these important principles of IHL.

Countries worldwide are under increasing pressure to take effective steps, both individually and collectively, to tackle corruption and recover the proceeds of corruption. Australia is no exception. International efforts to address the problem culminated with the coming into force in December 2005 of the UN Convention Against Corruption (UNCAC). This the first global instrument designed to tackle corruption in both the private and public sectors and it builds on a number of regional anti-corruption initiatives, including the Asia Development Bank/OECD Anti-Corruption Initiative for Asia-Pacific. In addition the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) has been active within the setting of tackling corruption in international business, particularly through the OECD Convention on Combating Bribery of Foreign Public Officials in International Business Transactions (OECD Convention). Australia is a party to both Conventions.

LWN179 COPYRIGHT IN THE DIGITAL AGE

In the last decade the traditional copyright regime has been challenged on two fronts. First, by the growth of technological developments that make unauthorised copying even easier. Second, by more vocal opposition to intellectual property protection from developing nations, consumers, library associations, open source advocates, NGOs, internet service providers, digital manufacturers and others who have advocated for more balanced copyright protection. Legislators around the world have responded to these challenges with major reform to copyright law at both the national and international levels. Given the increasingly complex nature of copyright law in the digital age, it is necessary to not only be familiar with the current copyright law but to also understand both the international and policy context driving the reform agenda.

LWN180 OPEN LICENSING: NEW MODELS FOR INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY

The Internet and associated digital technologies provide us with an enormous potential to access and build information and knowledge networks. Information and knowledge can be communicated in an instant across the globe, cheaply and with good quality, by even the most basic Internet user. However intellectual property law, which takes its definition from international conventions and is similar in most countries, places significant restrictions on people’s ability to take full advantage of this revolution. While the technology has the capacity, the legal restrictions on the reuse of copyright and other intellectual property materials materially hamper its negotiability in the digital environment.

LWN181 INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY LITIGATION

Intellectual property (IP) is an expanding industry, with companies increasingly seeking to protect their intellectual property in designs, inventions, trade marks and other assets. This expansion has unsurprisingly seen a tussle over the breadth of IP rights between owners, competitors, consumers and others. Critical to the resolution of these tensions and the process of defining the boundaries between competing rights holders is IP litigation.

Accordingly, in addition to understanding the law and theory underpinning IP rights, it is necessary to be familiar with IP litigation strategies.

Lawyers working within the criminal jurisdiction may be called upon to represent clients within a wide range of courts and tribunals. The study of criminal law at the undergraduate level typically focuses on the prosecution and defence of matters within the mainstream courts. Given that a significant number of matters take place within more specialist courts, usually catering for a special category of offender, it is essential for those practicing within the criminal jurisdiction to have a working knowledge of the law relating to the rules and procedures of these specialist courts. It is also important to understand the jurisprudence and juristic principles which inform the creation and operation of these fora.

LWN186 CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND STATE POWER

In Australian law courses, Constitutional Law units often focus on the extent of Commonwealth legislative powers, refer to the powers of the State Parliaments as ‘plenary and ample’, and treat the impact of constitutional law on the States as something of an afterthought. However, the Commonwealth Constitution has always imposed significant limits on State power and recent developments in constitutional interpretation have tightened these limits. There is an increasing need for those who advise the State government, or those who may litigate against it, to engage in a systematic and critical study of the effect of constitutional doctrines, mainly emanating from the Commonwealth Constitution, on State governments.

LWN187 LAW OF THE SEA

International law of the sea provides the overarching global legal regime for the world’s ocean spaces. International law of the sea is therefore key to the maintenance of international peace and security, protection of the world’s marine environment and regulation of the peaceful uses of international marine areas. The ambit of international law of the sea includes territorial seas, the continental shelf, archipelagic waters, contiguous and 200-mile zones, the high seas and the deep seabed. It provides the legal foundation for sovereign rights over marine areas, delimitation of maritime boundaries between states, international maritime navigational uses, seabed mining, the exploitation of fish stocks, piracy and marine scientific
LWN188 ADVANCED TAXATION LAW
In most legal transactions, there is a requirement to consider and obtain taxation law advice. Such transactions range from buying and selling a business to finalising a property settlement in family law. It is important, therefore, that lawyers have an understanding of these significant taxation issues so that they may provide a more comprehensive service to their clients.

LWN191 INTERNATIONAL CRIMINAL TRIBUNALS
The last fifteen years has seen the transformation of International Criminal Justice. The creation of the ad hoc international criminal tribunals by the UN Security Council, the emergence of hybrid courts and the establishment of the International Criminal Court under the Rome Statute has fuelled developments in both the substantive law and in International Criminal Procedure. The enforcement of International Criminal Law in the international legal order is heavily reliant on cooperation with Sovereign States. Australia has implemented legislation for cooperation with the ICTY, ICTR and the ICC in order to carry out its obligations under International Law.

LWN194 CONCEPTUAL ISSUES IN MEDICAL LAW
The aim of the unit is to develop an understanding of the major conceptual issues underpinning contemporary debates and proposals for law reform in the following main areas of health law:
- Withholding and withdrawing medical treatment and euthanasia;
- Embryonic stem cell research; and
- Genetic engineering.
We then aim to develop an understanding of the role such a clarification can play in contributing to, and resolving, some of the more intractable issues in the debates.

LWN196 ENVIRONMENTAL LAW AND PRACTICE
Environmental law is a relatively new and innovative area of law. It has been created in response to growing concerns in our community regarding the need to protect our environment from excessive harm, whilst enabling industrial activities to continue to operate and contribute to our economy. Environmental law has emerged in recent years as a significant area of professional legal practice. This unit will introduce you to the key concepts of environmental law through analysis of a series of real world environmental law scenarios which will integrate your understanding of the law and legal system. This unit will provide a strong foundation for more in-depth postgraduate study of particular aspects of environmental law.

LWN301 PRINCIPLES OF AUSTRALIAN CONTRACT LAW
Although grounded in principles of English common law, Australian contract law has, like many other areas of Australian law, developed a distinctly Australian slant, particularly in the last 20 years. These emerging principles, as well as the more fundamental contract law concepts, will be explored in this unit. Where appropriate, we will be concentrating on the legal principles applicable in Queensland.
