Overview
The Master of Laws by coursework is a one year full time course that engages students in a focused study of areas of law of practical and theoretical interest to graduates working in private practice or in specialised legal areas in other working environments. It engages students at a level of detail not possible in an undergraduate course.

Entry Requirements
Domestic students:
Prospective students must have:
(i) completed the requirements for the degree of Bachelor of Laws or equivalent (as approved by Director, Graduate Programs) with a minimum GPA of 4 or equivalent;
OR
(ii) hold a professional qualification in law and have at least three years of professional legal experience after first admission to practice and also satisfy the Director, Graduate Programs, that they have the requisite ability to complete the Master of Laws by Coursework degree.

International students:
Prospective students must have completed the requirements for the degree of Bachelor of Laws or equivalent (as approved by Director, Graduate Programs) with a minimum GPA of 4 or equivalent.

Course Structure
The course structure comprises 96 credit points (eight units) of coursework units. This can be achieved in one of two ways. Students may nominate a major and choose units to the value of at least 72 credit points from that particular major. The remaining 24 credit points can be chosen from any units not included in the nominated major.

Majors include:
• Commercial Law
• Criminology
• Environmental Resources Law
• Health Law
• Public Law
• Intellectual Property and Technology Law
• Generic: Choose any 8 postgraduate coursework units (96 credit points)

Study Area: Choose 6 units (72 credit points) from a list of units plus 2 option units (24 credit points) (total: 96 credit points).

Articulation
Graduates may apply for admission to the Doctor of Juridical Science (SJD) (subject to normal entry requirements) and Doctor of Philosophy (PhD).

Advanced Standing
Students who have completed a Graduate Certificate in Law will be eligible for 48 credit points of advanced standing.

Graduates of QUT's Graduate Diploma in Legal Practice before 2000 or after 2008 are eligible for up to 24 credit points of unspecified credit towards the Master of Laws course.

Graduates of other Australian university-based practical legal training courses that lead to an award of a Graduate Diploma in Legal Practice are entitled to 12 credit points of unspecified credit.

Persons who have successfully completed the Queensland Law Society accredited specialist assessment and are Queensland Law Society Accredited Specialists are entitled to 12 credit points of unspecified credit when they enrol in the Master of Laws course.

Unit Information
Not all units are available in any one year. Generally, postgraduate law units are offered on a two year rotational basis, and are offered subject to staff availability and minimum enrolments being met.

Please refer to the following link for current unit information:
http://www.law.qut.edu.au/study/courses/pgrad/units_10.jsp

Units may be offered in block, internal or internal and external mode of study.
Note: Units offered in external mode are not available for off-shore study. Students who wish to enrol in units externally must be living in Australia. Only a small number of units are offered on an external basis each year.

*International students on student visas are able to enrol in a combination of intensive, external and internal units each semester. (This is subject to approval)

The degree may contain up to 48 credit points in independent research projects, as approved by the Director, Graduate Programs.

The course rules allows students to undertake a limited number of approved units from other schools at QUT or from other universities (subject to meeting credit rules for the LLM).

UNIT SYNOPSES

JSN001 THEORIES OF JUSTICE
This unit is concerned with and/or clarifying the assumptions that underpin arguments about what is just or unjust within various spheres of contemporary Australian society. The unit provides a framework for evaluating the relative usefulness of various theories of justice in terms of their theoretical implications and practical applications. The unit focuses on the interface between justice, postmodernism and the law.

Credit points: 12  Campus: External  Teaching period: 2007 SEM-1  Incompatible with: JSB411, LWN040

JSN023 JUSTICE, LAW AND DEMOCRACY
In this unit, students explore analyses of the major issues of social philosophy including justifications of liberty, harm to others, private property rights, distributive justice, environmental harms, help to others and criminal and offensive behaviour. Students also discuss links between law, justice and social institutions and how we might adjudicate between competing interests in society. Lawyers and other justice professionals, public administrators, and para-professionals working in the fields of law, justice or politics will find this unit useful in developing a theoretical foundation for understanding social institutions and how they interact with law and morality. Students develop critical research and writing skills.

Credit points: 12  Campus: Kelvin Grove and External  Teaching period: 2007 SEM-2  Incompatible with: JSN005, LWN042

JSN144 EVIDENCE IN ORGANISED CRIME INVESTIGATIONS
In recognition of the limitations of traditional law enforcement methods in dealing with organised crime and corruption, the Commonwealth and some State governments have granted more extensive powers to their police services and created inquisitorial commissions equipped with special coercive powers. The aim of this unit is firstly, to assist investigators and other professionals to appreciate the impact of rules of evidence in this specific context, secondly, to understand how these new powers can be more effectively exercised, and thirdly, to inform those representing persons who are the subject of such exercise on how best they can protect the rights of their clients.

Credit points: 12  Campus: Kelvin Grove and External  Teaching period: 2007 SEM-2

LWN060 ENVIRONMENTAL LEGAL SYSTEM

Environmental law and its related unit Natural Resources Law have become significant areas of professional legal practice over the last decade or so. A number of firms of solicitors have set up units in their practices specialising in these areas. At the same time, these branches of the law have emerged as significant areas for research and publication. Most law schools have undergraduate courses in environmental law and several have introduced postgraduate courses in these areas. There is a growing demand for courses in these areas at postgraduate level on the part of those wishing to study the subject for the first time and also on the part of those seeking to expand their existing knowledge and understanding of these areas. This unit complements the unit in Natural Resources Law. Together these two courses create the framework within which further study is possible either by way of further units or more focused research papers.

LWN075 INTERNATIONAL COMMERCIAL TRANSACTIONS

This unit on international trade law addresses the legal problems that arise in the formation and operation of commercial transactions of an international nature. Its scope is largely confined to the sphere of private law. Topics covered include: the international trade law and environment; harmonisation and unification of law; international contracts (characteristics, comparative law, negotiating and drafting, choice of law); international sale of goods (trade terms, standard conditions, uniform law); carriage of goods by sea; payment in a documentary sale, and other financing mechanisms; marketing arrangements (agency, distributorship, subsidiary, joint venture).

LWN076 INTERNATIONAL COMMERCIAL DISPUTES

This unit addresses legal issues regarding the resolution of commercial disputes in international trade. It is concerned with disputes in respect of international commercial relationships of a private law nature. Dispute resolution mechanisms (such as litigation, arbitration and alternative dispute resolution) are examined, and their effectiveness evaluated, in the light of the legal and practical realities in the international trade environment. Students are introduced to a range of commercial practices, national regulation, and international uniform rules, model laws and conventions.

LWN083 ESTATE PLANNING

In recent years there has been a renewed interest in all aspects of estate planning. During the period when death duties were imposed at both the State and Federal levels, professional interest in this area was high as the public perceived its need for expert professional advice, particularly as it related to the structuring of a person's affairs to minimise the impost of these duties. The emergence of capital gains tax and the realisation of its growing significance, together with a recent emphasis generally on financial planning has again brought this area to prominence. At a time when the legal profession is looking for new areas at work, there is also evidence that lawyers see this area as one which has been largely neglected. This unit seeks to conceptualise a framework in which the issues which arise in estate planning can usefully be considered.

Credit points: 12  Contact hours: 2 hrs per week  Campus: Gardens Point and External  Teaching period: 2010 SEM-2

LWN087 CONTEMPORARY ISSUES IN TORTS

Contemporary issues in the law of torts extend beyond the tort of negligence to include areas such as the economic torts, the tortious liability of public officials, the torts of trespass and nuisance, and the emerging tort of privacy. In addition there have been significant developments in related areas such as vicarious liability and the apportioning of liability amongst multiple tortfeasors. It is, therefore, appropriate that these contemporary issues in the law of torts be the subject of an LLM unit that allows for a more sophisticated level of conceptual analysis and synthesis than was appropriate at an undergraduate level.

LWN094 ENERGY LAW

Natural resources law and its related subject, environmental law, have become significant areas of professional legal practice over the last decade or so. One of the particular areas of natural resources law for these purposes is energy law. Energy law is the law relating to the ownership, use, development and control of those natural resources which are used to produce energy for the benefit of the community. Areas covered in this unit include: the sources and history of energy law; the principles and concepts underlying energy law; the common law rules of ownership of sources of energy; statutory ownership of sources of energy; how the law regulates access to sources of energy; how the law controls the development of sources of energy.

Credit points: 12  Contact hours: 2 hrs per week  Campus: Gardens Point  Teaching period: 2010 5TP2

LWN113 LAW OF GUARANTEES

Guarantees are an important area of practice for commercial lawyers as a substantial proportion of large commercial transactions involve the giving of guarantees. Guarantees are also significant for consumer finance. This unit considers formation and validity, including comparison with other contracts; factors affecting validity, including disclosure, misrepresentation, mistake, unconscionable conduct, undue influence, s.51AB Trade Practices Act (Cwlth), s.70 Consumer Code; obligations of solicitor; liability, including principle of co-extensiveness and rules of construction; discharge of guarantee, including discharge by the determination of the principal transaction and discharge by reason of the creditor's conduct.
LWN115 HUMAN RIGHTS IN AUSTRALIAN LAW
Human rights impact upon the legal rights of all Australians. A knowledge of the human rights currently recognised and the extent to which they can be enforced in Australia is of benefit to all professionals. This knowledge can be used to advocate for people in a variety of legal, social and cultural contexts.

LWN117 CYBER LAW AND POLICY
This unit examines legal issues relating to the Internet. The unit will consider the application of existing legal principles to "cyberspace" as well as newly developed Internet Law or Cyberlaw principles. Knowledge of Internet Law is of increasing importance in many areas of legal practice, industry and to society more generally. This is a new area of activity and it is important to educate lawyers and other professionals on the unique issues that have arisen and will emerge in this area, in particular the difficulty in regulating the distributed international network of computers known as the "internet".

LWN120 SELECT ISSUES IN MEDIA LAW AND POLICY
In the technology age the media pervades our lives. Those in the media who control the flow of information wield great power. A study of the functioning of media institutions and the controls imposed upon the activities of those institutions in a democratic society may lead to an understanding of the exercise of that power. This unit examines the concept of freedom of speech as exercised by the media and selected limitations on that freedom imposed by the common law and statute, limitations imposed upon media institutions represented by broadcasting law and policy issues affecting the functioning of the media.

Credit points: 12  Contact hours: 26 hrs in total
Campus: Gardens Point

LWN122 COMMERCIAL LEASES
With the exponential rise in the numbers of commercial premises such as office blocks, shopping centres and industrial factories in the past decade or so, the study of commercial leases for the legal practitioners has assumed a great importance. Statute law in the form of the Trade Practices Act 1974 and the Retail Shop Leases Act 1994 have also impacted significantly upon commercial leasing practices. Whilst there is no one form of standard commercial lease, certain generic clauses have emerged and there now exists a substantial body of law in Australia relating to the theory underlying and practice of the law of commercial leases. This unit endeavours to explain the theoretical basis for the use of certain basic covenants at the same time taking full account of the practical operation of commercial leases in Australia.

LWN125 ELECTRONIC COMMERCE LAW
It is vital for any participant in the digital age to gain a thorough knowledge of how the information economy is regulated for the benefit of individuals, corporations and the State, nationally and internationally. In order to be able to participate as a lawyer or other professional in this new environment it is important to have an understanding of the laws relating to privacy, e-security, consumer regulation, electronic payment and taxation systems, electronic contracts, and Public Key Infrastructure.

LWN129 CONTEMPORARY ISSUES IN SENTENCING LAW
Sentencing law has become a specialised area of research and practice over the past two decades in the United Kingdom and the United States, and increasingly so in Australia. In practice, this is particularly so for barristers and specialist criminal law practitioners. Increasingly, law schools have undergraduate and postgraduate units in this area. Almost all Australian jurisdictions have now introduced specialised sentencing legislation, introducing discrete principles and thereby ensuring that a separate discipline area of sentencing law has emerged, complete with its own discourse. It is therefore appropriate that sentencing law should feature as a postgraduate unit in its own right.

LWN135 LAW, JUSTICE AND NEW GENETIC TECHNOLOGIES

Our ability to test, screen and manipulate the human genome is made possible by recent technological breakthroughs in science. The science of genetics is not new, but its public profile has never been higher. Current initiatives in genetic knowledge have been described as an international voyage of scientific discovery. The scientific findings are prompting major rethinking of concepts of law and justice. The legal community faces a perpetual challenge in keeping pace with the revolution in genetics. This unit looks at some legal implications of this revolution and charts the major responses of our legal system to modern genetics and biotechnology.

LWN145 CORPORATE AND INVESTMENT REGULATION

Regulation is no longer solely a government issue any more, Enron, HIH and One Tel have taught us it is an issue that both the private and public sectors must embrace and learn quickly.

Lawyers and corporate advisers must now think outside the square and keep abreast of an ever-changing legal and corporate environment. This unit will develop a forward thinking approach to corporate and investment regulation and promote practical and analytical appraisal of the issues arising in relation to the regulation of companies and investment.

LWN149 CONCEPTION, BIRTH AND THE LAW

Some aspects of human reproduction raise complex legal and ethical considerations. Civil liability to a child can arise where that child is injured in utero or upon delivery. Liability to parents may also arise where a child is conceived as a result of a failed sterilization procedure or where a mother is injured during a negligent delivery. There have also been rapid developments in assisted reproductive technologies. One of the difficulties in this area is an absence of consistent regulation of the many controversial issues associated with such medical advances. These include the nature of any regulatory regime, access to treatment, rights of donors and children born as a result of these technologies, posthumous use of gametes and embryo research. The topics examined in this unit are becoming increasingly important both from the perspective of government regulation and for legal practitioners in the field of health law.

LWN150 DEATH, DECISIONS AND THE LAW

As people near the end of their lives, their medical treatment and other care raises complex medical, legal and ethical decisions. Choices about whether particular treatment should be provided or refused may have to be made, and this is complicated by the fact that many people may not have the competence at this stage in their life to be able to make these decisions. Although a competent adult may refuse treatment, another choice demanded by some is the right to end their own life and to be assisted by others to achieve this. This unit examines the legal aspects of these choices.

LWN151 SELECT ISSUES IN PROPERTY LAW

The principles and practice relating to transactions of real property are rapidly becoming more complex. This complexity is being driven by continuing statutory intervention in what had been for many years traditionally settled relationships i.e those of principal and real estate agent, buyer and seller, commercial lessor and lessee and mortgagor and mortgagee. In recent times the courts are also redefining these relationships through the extension of the law. This unit examines legislation affecting these relationships.

LWN153 SELECT ISSUES IN ART, CULTURE AND THE LAW

This unit introduces a distinct ‘art and culture law’ to Australian legal practitioners, arts practitioners and policy makers, which has been developing in the international arena since the 1980’s. Creating and selling art and cultural objects is the subject of well-defined categories of law, including contracts, sale of goods and copyright, though other specific forms of regulation, such as the law governing the international movement of cultural objects, is less well-known. Finding and applying these areas of law is relatively straightforward, but without an appreciation of the relationship between the areas of law, inconsistencies and contradictions arise. One reason this occurs is because these areas of law cross traditional legal categories, and there is generally very little opportunity within most law courses to understand the inter-relationship and interaction between these disparate areas of law.

LWN155 BIOTECHNOLOGY LAW
Multifaceted problems are raised by biotechnology, most of which revolve around the genetic modification of life. Wide ranging issues include the acceptability of patenting life forms, the monopolisation of basic food production with genetically modified foods, the risk and allocation of risk with the introduction of modified materials into the ecosystem, cloning and stem cell use. Professionals working in the biotechnology area need to be familiar with the legal, scientific and business issues that arise out of this developing area.

LWN158 PUBLIC INTERNATIONAL LAW
Public international law is the foundational law which governs the rules operating as between States. It establishes, for instance, the contexts in which force may be used, how new States come into being, what environmental obligations States owe to one another, and the immunities States and their representatives may enjoy from prosecution. It is pursuant to international law, that International Tribunals have been established to prosecute war criminals. Furthermore, doctrines of international law underpin arguments concerning the appropriate maritime boundaries between East Timor and Australia or the competence of the coalition of the willing to militarily intervene in Iraq. LWN159 ELECTRONIC LITIGATION
With the proliferation of electronic files being created and distributed by corporations around the globe today, it is no surprise that the discovery process during a document-heavy litigation is becoming more and more onerous.

Tools to effectively manage this electronic information are used by many of the larger law firms and will soon be part of every legal practice, in much the same way as the word processor is a necessity in any new millennium practice. Moreover, courts are now taking the initiative to encourage the use of information technology in civil litigation.

Knowledge of the issues that surround electronic documents and the use of information technology to better manage discovery and trial processes is imperative, and such issues are examined in this unit - Electronic Litigation. LWN160 PROFESSIONAL LIABILITY & PROPERTY TRANSACTIONS
The primary aim of this unit is to examine the development and application of the principles relating to the liability of nominated professionals engaged in property transactions, it affords an opportunity to a student to critically analyse issues arising from complex factual matrices which present themselves in this area of law and to contribute meaningfully to a consideration of these issues in a structured way. The second aim of this unit is to give students an understanding as to how this area of law may develop further based upon the application of new concepts such as proportionate liability or economic loss and apportionment legislation under the Trade Practices Act 1974 and Civil Liability Acts in Australian jurisdictions. LWN162 AUSTRALIAN COMMON LAW SYSTEM
This unit is designed for international students from civil law countries and other non- common law jurisdictions or jurisdictions where English is not the first language and Australian graduates in disciplines other than law. This unit will provide these students with a solid foundation in the common law system with particular emphasis on the Australian legal and constitutional framework so that they will be much better equipped to complete other units in LW51 Master of Laws or LW60 Graduate Certificate in Law.

LWN166 CONSENT TO TREATMENT AND CLINICAL NEGLIGENCE

Health law is an important and growing area of legal practice and attracts much attention from academic, social and political commentators across a range of disciplines.

A detailed knowledge and understanding of the law relating to consent to treatment is a core legal issue in health law. This area involves the consideration of complex legal, ethical and policy considerations. In recent times, decisions of the High Court of Australia and courts in other jurisdictions have emphasised the importance of the rights of patients to make decisions for themselves in relation to medical treatment where they are competent to do so and absent special circumstances.

LWN167 FAMILIES, CREATION AND SEPARATION

Family law is a rapidly evolving area of law that reflects changing societal values and key developments in government policy. Understandings of ‘marriage’ and ‘family’ in contemporary Australian society are altering due to changing societal values. In some respects this has occurred in response to an increase in the number of de-facto and same-sex relationships and the changing configurations of ‘family’ due to people accessing assisted reproductive technology. It is therefore of critical importance that family law practitioners, people working within the family law system and graduates with an interest in family law have the opportunity to study emerging issues relating to family law at a high and analytically sophisticated level.

LWN168 THEORIES OF DISPUTE RESOLUTION

This unit enables you to study the principles and theory of non-adversarial justice at a high level. You will develop a thorough and sophisticated understanding of the nature of conflict and disputes and will critically examine a number of models of dispute resolution. The unit looks at theoretical and practical issues in relation to dispute resolution that are relevant to working effectively as a professional in a variety of legal and dispute resolution environments. You will have the opportunity to critically reflect on issues such as mediator neutrality, the role of lawyers in dispute resolution processes and the efficacy of confidentiality. These critical reflections will enable you to effectively assess the suitability of dispute resolution processes for certain cases. The unit will also give you an understanding of some of the skills necessary for conflict management and dispute resolution in a variety of contexts.

LWN171 USE OF FORCE AND INTERNATIONAL HUMANITARIAN LAW
This important area of law is currently informing and shaping state responses to terrorist and other threats to peace and security. Many of the fundamental concepts in this area of the law are based on the assumption that conflicts occur between states or occur within states and that the principle actors in a conflict are state-based actors. The events of September 11 and consequent terrorist attacks have invited a rethinking of the fundamentals of the laws applicable to the resort to force and the laws which regulate the use of force in situations of armed conflict. At the same time, long standing rules of International Humanitarian Law (IHL) designed to protect civilians from unwarranted attack and to ensure fair trial for individuals accused of serious violations of international humanitarian law have come under enormous pressure. The course will examine the development of these rules and current developments in the enforcement of these important principles of IHL.

LWN176 SPECIAL TOPIC IN CRIMINAL LAW (COMBATTING INTERNATIONAL CORRUPTION)
Countries worldwide are under increasing pressure to take effective steps, both individually and collectively, to tackle corruption and recover the proceeds of corruption. Australia is no exception. International efforts to address the problem culminated with the coming into force in December 2005 of the UN Convention Against Corruption (UNCAC). This the first global instrument designed to tackle corruption in both the private and public sectors and it builds on a number of regional anti-corruption initiatives, including the Asia Development Bank/OECD Anti-Corruption Initiative for Asia-Pacific. In addition the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) has been active within the setting of tackling corruption in international business, particularly through the OECD Convention on Combating Bribery of Foreign Public Officials in International Business Transactions (OECD Convention). Australia is a party to both Conventions.

LWN179 COPYRIGHT IN THE DIGITAL AGE
In the last decade the traditional copyright regime has been challenged on two fronts. First, by the growth of technological developments that make unauthorised copying even easier. Second, by more vocal opposition to intellectual property protection from developing nations, consumer and library associations, open source advocates, NGOs, internet service providers, digital manufacturers and others who have advocated for more balanced copyright protection. Legislators around the world have responded to these challenges with major reform to copyright law at both the national and international levels. Given the increasingly complex nature of copyright law in the digital age, it is necessary to not only be familiar with the current copyright law but to also understand both the international and policy context driving the reform agenda.

LWN180 OPEN LICENSING: NEW MODELS FOR INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY
The Internet and associated digital technologies provide us with an enormous potential to access and build information and knowledge networks. Information and knowledge can be communicated in an instant across the globe, cheaply and with good quality, by even the most basic Internet user. However intellectual property law, which takes its definition from international conventions and is similar in most countries, places significant restrictions on people’s ability to take full advantage of this revolution. While the technology has the capacity, the legal restrictions on the reuse of copyright and other intellectual property materials materially hamper its negotiability in the digital environment.

LWN181 INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY LITIGATION
Intellectual property (IP) is an expanding industry, with companies increasingly seeking to protect their intellectual property in designs, inventions, trade marks and other assets. This expansion has unsurprisingly seen a tussle over the breadth of IP rights between owners, competitors, consumers and others. Critical to the resolution of these tensions and the process of defining the boundaries between competing rights holders is IP litigation.
Accordingly, in addition to understanding the law and theory underpinning IP rights, it is necessary to be familiar with IP litigation strategies.

LWN182 CRIMINAL TRIBUNALS
Lawyers working within the criminal jurisdiction may be called upon to represent clients within a wide range of courts and tribunals. The study of criminal law at the undergraduate level typically focuses on the prosecution and defence of matters within the mainstream courts. Given that a significant number of matters take place within more specialist courts, usually catering for a special category of offender, it is essential for those pursuing within the criminal jurisdiction to have a working knowledge of the law relating to the rules and procedures of these specialist courts. It is also important to understand the jurisprudence and juristic principles which inform the creation and operation of these fora.

LWN186 CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND STATE POWER
In Australian law courses, Constitutional Law units often focus on the extent of Commonwealth legislative powers, refer to the powers of the State Parliaments as ‘plenary and ample’, and treat the impact of constitutional law on the States as something of an afterthought. However, the Commonwealth Constitution has always imposed significant limits on State power and recent developments in constitutional interpretation have tightened these limits. There is an increasing need for those who advise the State government, or those who may litigate against it, to engage in a systematic and critical study of the effect of constitutional doctrines, mainly emanating from the Commonwealth Constitution, on State governments.

LWN187 LAW OF THE SEA
International law of the sea provides the overarching global legal regime for the world’s ocean spaces. International law of the sea is therefore key to the maintenance of international peace and security, protection of the world’s marine environment and regulation of the peaceful uses of international marine areas. The ambit of international law of the sea includes territorial seas, the continental shelf, archipelagic waters, contiguous and 200-mile zones, the high seas and the deep seabed. It provides the legal foundation for sovereign rights over marine areas, delimitation of maritime boundaries between states, international maritime navigational uses, seabed mining, the exploitation of fish stocks, piracy and marine scientific research.

Space Law represents an increasingly important area of International Law and impacts on a wide range of Governmental and private commercial activities. Last year was the fortieth anniversary of the first human lunar landing and, as such, represents a milestone in the use and exploration of outer space. In the short period since then, the rapid development of technology has meant that space has been used (and utilised) for a myriad of diverse purposes. Many activities in space affect everyday life – including telecommunications, direct satellite broadcasts, weather forecasting, agricultural planning, mapping, remote sensing, spying and other military activities, exploration and scientific experimentation. The use of space represents a multi-billion dollar industry.
